

APPLYING FOR UNCONTESTED DIVORCE

To get a divorce, you must show that your marriage has broken down. The law says a marriage is broken if at least one of these apply:

- You and your spouse have lived apart for one year and consider your marriage over.
- Your spouse has committed adultery and you have not forgiven your spouse.
- Your spouse has been physically or mentally cruel to you such that living together is intolerable.
- If you are asking for a divorce because of adultery or physical or mental cruelty against you, you will have to prove what happened.
